CAROL ARCHARD, BLACKHEATH: 'Deep joy of the first cut of the grass...'

Typical of the commercially driven mindset in our area

I AM writing in response to Dr A.T. Bradford's letter of April 2, regarding the proposed conversion of a single house in Blackheath into two. The existing house was designed and built by its late owner and is a wonderful contribution to our conservation area in Blackheath. The proposed demolition of this lovely house, to be replaced by two buildings with 10 bedrooms is typical of the commercially driven mindset which is occurring in our area at present. We are all aware that there is a housing shortage, but demolishing our local heritage is not the right way to answer the problem.

Dr Philip E Harris, Blackheath

● The development referred to involves the demolition of the existing house at 49 Langton Way and the construction of two semi-detached dwellings. This application had been presented to the Greenwich Area Committee on March 18, and after discussion, was deferred for members to undertake a site visit. A date for the site visit is yet to be confirmed however this application is likely to be reported back to the Greenwich Area Committee on May 1.

Star Letter

Drivers are ignoring road signs

WHAT is the point of having road traffic signs?

At the top of Bannockburn Road, off Plumstead High Street, it states 'Left Turn Only'. There are also two other signs stating 'No Right Turn', and there is another opposite the top of the road stating 'No Right Turn'. On numerous occasions I have seen drivers blatantly ignoring these signs and turning right. I have even witnessed police cars slowing down and letting drivers turn right out of Bannockburn Road, and ignoring the fact the drivers are contravening the road signs. I have just witnessed three drivers turning right from Bannockburn Road, one of which almost caused an accident by doing so. When you turn right from Bannockburn Road, there is a pelican crossing. In term time there is a lollipop man, but when schools are on holiday pedestrians take their life in their hands as even drivers turning right seem to ignore the lights as well. Is the police going to wait until there is a fatality before they consider doing anything about this? My husband, who is partly disabled, takes a little bit longer to cross the road, but as soon as the lights start to change the drivers speed right from Bannockburn Road. Twice he has nearly been knocked down. Surely something should be done about the blatant disregard by motorists.

Mrs D. Warman, Plumstead
● The royal borough has an annual programme of road safety works which has led to significant reductions in road traffic accidents. A local safety scheme along Plumstead High Street is being implemented this year, and measures to reinforce the banned turn at this junction will be considered as part of that.

Adventures in Wales saved for generations to come

Whose quarry now?

GENERATIONS of children will be able to make adventure trips to a quarry in Wales for years to come thanks to the generosity of its owners.

The Gaewern Quarry has been leased to the Widehorizons charity based in Eltham for 25 years for a peppercorn rent. The owners, London estate agents Miranda and Charlie Garton-Jones decided to lease the quarry instead of original plans to sell it.

Charlie, who has roots in the area, said: "I had decided to sell the quarry but when I found out about the fantastic work that Widehorizons does there with so many London children, I didn't want to risk them losing access through a new owner."

"I remember the huge impact that adventures like these had on me when I was a child and I wanted to be part of making sure that children had the same opportunities." The quarry is used for numerous activities as part of the charity's work with London schools, many from Greenwich. Children get to experience climbing, abseiling and learn about the heritage of the local mining industry.

Widehorizons chief executive Alex Brooks-Johnson said: "We are really grateful to Charlie Garton-Jones, who has been so incredibly generous with leasing the quarry to us for virtually nothing."

"Without access to the quarry we would have had to disappoint hundreds of schools and thousands of London children that have been climbing in it for many, many years."

Outdoor adventures can teach children about communication, trust and teamwork, increasing self-confidence and self-esteem.

ROYAL BOROUGH OF GREENWICH

APPOINTMENT of an INDEPENDENT PERSON and an INDEPENDENT MEMBER OF THE STANDARDS COMMITTEE

The Royal Borough's Standards Committee promotes high standards of conduct and considers complaints that councillors may have broken the Code of Conduct which governs the behaviour of councillors.

The Standards Committee consists of three councillors and three independent members, one of whom chairs the Committee. The Council is seeking to fill two vacancies among the independent members.

The Council is also seeking to appoint an Independent Person whose views must by law be sought and taken into account before the Standards Committee reaches a decision on any complaint.

The Royal Borough would therefore like to hear from people who wish to be considered for either or both of these positions and who live, work or study in Greenwich.

Please note that these positions are not open to anyone:

- who is or has been a Greenwich councillor, co-opted member or officer within the past five years, or
- who is a close friend or relative of a Greenwich councillor, co-opted member or officer.

The positions are voluntary. While there is no salary attached, there is a small allowance and the Royal Borough will reimburse the cost of all reasonable travel and other out-of-pocket expenses.

Attendance may be required at meetings at Woolwich Town Hall which are usually held in the early evening.

The Royal Borough is committed to equal opportunities and welcomes applications from all sections of the residential and/or business community.

If you are interested, please obtain an application form from Russell Power, Head of Law and Governance, The Woolwich Centre, 4th Floor, 35 Wellington Street, Woolwich, London, SE18 6HQ or e-mail: russell.power@greenwich.gov.uk.

Completed applications should be received by Friday 26th April 2013.

CHANGES to the health service in Greenwich Clinical Commissioning Group (CCG) is now in and the borough's 44 GP practices will handle the will it all mean for patients in the borough?

Doctors

THE far-reaching changes in the way local health services are organised have started – but will patients notice any difference?

The answer according to Plumstead GP Dr Hany Wahba, who chairs the new CCG organisation, is ‘not immediately’. He says: “There will be no immediate difference, but over time having a greater input from GPs should improve services for patients.”

People in Greenwich are being encouraged to call their GP first if they are not seriously ill, or have suffered only a minor injury - their family doctor should be the first person to contact. If a condition is more serious then always dial 999 or go to A&E.

Dr Wahba has been a GP in the borough for 44 years and has a surgery in Wrottesley Road. He said: “Patients should always contact their GP in the first instance. We are best placed to identify problems and, where needed, refer patients on to other services.

“Of course if you do have a life-threatening emergency, such as loss of consciousness, acute confused state and fits that are not stopping, persistent and severe chest pain, breathing difficulties, or severe bleeding that cannot be stopped, then you should call 999.”

Responsibility for improving public health now comes under the council.

GPs say the move puts them in the best position to handle their patients' needs – unless serious and urgent treatment is required. The move will also free-up hospital casualty units to concentrate on more serious cases where prompt action is needed.

“We are working on increasing the range of services available to people outside hospital, and the next key priority on is improving coordination of services across primary care, community and hospital services, which should improve the patients' experience and make services simpler,” Dr Wahba said.

This is already happening in minor surgery, dermatology and gynaecology, he says, and due to start in anticoagulation and phlebotomy.

“We also expect patients to notice a difference in the quality of other community-based services, such as district nursing, mental health, and better care in residential and nursing homes.

EAR IN LIES THE PROBLEM: Dr Hany Wahba examines a patient's

We are working hard to build a strong link between hospital-based care and GP services to ensure better communication between doctors and nurses who work in primary care and hospital services, better quality and more efficient care for long term conditions to minimise the need for acute hospital attendance and admissions, and to find ways to improve patients' access to their GP.

He added: “We want to ensure local people know the best place to go when they are unwell or have been injured. By understanding the choices available to them and what their GP can offer, people in Greenwich could save themselves time as well as saving NHS resources that could be used to help those who are

Out-of-hours is open all hours

THERE is a GP out-of-hours service in Greenwich which is available 365 days-a-year. It can arrange for patients to see a GP as soon as possible, or give you health advice over the phone if this is appropriate. Call the dedicated NHS 111 team and they will help direct you to the best out-of-hours service for your needs.

All of the borough's 44 GP practices are members of Greenwich CCG. Its role is to improve healthcare and services for the people in Greenwich. A new website has been launched at www.greenwichccg.nhs.uk where people can find out more about Greenwich CCG and its priorities. The website also gives details of public meetings and how people can get involved.

You can register with a GP of your choice, as long as you live within its catchment area and it is accepting new patients. More info: www.nhs.uk critically ill. There are lots of services available to help with a variety of illnesses and injuries which are alternative to an A&E visit. These include GP practices, GP out-of-hours services, walk-in centres and pharmacies."

The campaign to encourage patients to see their GP for minor ailments rather than go to A&E is being backed by Cllr John Fahy, the royal borough's cabinet member for health, adults and older people. He said: "Far too many people go to A&E because they can't get an appointment with their GP. We are working to improve community services supporting GP surgeries in being able to offer a 24-7 service."

JUST THE JAB: doctor gives lad an injection

Dial 111 if it's NOT an emergency...

NHS 111 is a fast and easy way to get the right help, whatever the time. It's available 24 hours a day, 365 days a year. Calls are free from landlines and mobile phones. You should use the service if you urgently need medical help or advice but it's not a life-threatening situation. Call 111 if:

- You need medical help fast but it's not a 999 emergency
- You think you need to go to A&E or need another NHS urgent care service
- You don't know who to call or you don't have a GP to call
- You need health information or reassurance about what to do next.
- For less urgent health needs, contact your GP or local pharmacist in the usual way.

If a health professional has given you a specific phone number to call when you are concerned about your condition, continue to use that number. For immediate, life-threatening emergencies, call 999.

The NHS 111 service is staffed by a team of fully-trained advisers, supported by experienced nurses. They will ask you questions to assess your symptoms, then give you the healthcare advice you need or direct you straightaway to the local service that can help you best. That could be A&E, an out-of-hours doctor, an urgent care centre or a walk-in centre, a community nurse, an emergency dentist or a late-opening chemist. Where possible, the NHS 111 team will book you an appointment or transfer you directly to the people you need to speak to.

PEOPLE who are not happy with the NHS service they have received in the borough can receive help in making a complaint from:

Spring onto the Green Chain

AS the weather finally begins to warm up, the Green Chain has issued a calendar of outdoor events that Greenwich residents can take part in: The Green Chain is a 50-mile network of footpaths that link 300 parks and open spaces along the Thames riverside, up over Shooters Hill and across to Dulwich Park. The project is funded by five London boroughs including Royal Greenwich. Cllr Harry Singh, the royal borough's cabinet member for Greener Greenwich said: Spring is the perfect time of year to get out and explore the beautiful surrounds and history we have here in the region! All these are accessible through the Green Chain Walk. Weekends provide an ideal opportunity for families to discover more about their local area." Join in the following forthcoming events: The Big Hospice Walk, Sunday 12 May 10am, Eltham Park South, nearest train station: Falconwood. The route is popular with all the family, you can even bring the dog!

Friends of Shrewsbury Park Evening Bat Walk, Friday 17 May 7.15pm, nearest train station: Plumstead. ● Find out more about what's on offer on the "What's On" page at www.greenchain.com, or sign-up for quarterly newsletters by emailing events@greenchain.com

WANT to get cycling? Take part in a cycle ride along the Thames Path on Saturday April 27 from 12pm to 4pm. Rides start and finish at the Woolwich Arsenal Pier near the bronze statues. Burke statues with a shorter half hour ride and a longer one hour ride. Mostly flat and traffic free routes, perfect for families and beginners. There'll also be a Dr Bike on site offering bike maintenance and a Smoothie bike which you can ride to make yourself a smoothie powered by pedal power. ● For more information please call 020 8921 3359 or email greener@greenwich.gov.uk

Wartime worship at St Alfege's

ON March 19 1941 incendiary bombs lodged in the timbers of the roof of St Alfege's church in the heart of Greenwich. They caused a blazing mass of timbers and molten metal to collapse into the nave destroying a fine organ with pipe work dating from Thomas Tallis's own time as organist at the church.

The building existed in its burnt out state until the War Damage Commission provided £8000 for the restoration work, £5000 of which was allocated for the organ! The work began in 1946 and was completed in time for the rededication of the church by the Bishop of Southwark on April 18 1953. During that time the congregation worshipped in one aisle of the church partitioned off under the north gallery. Baptisms, funerals and marriages all took place there whilst the painstaking work was carried out.

Now current day church leaders are appealing for anyone who remembers the church during this period in the run up to the jubilee of its restoration.

Church administrator Jenny Bracey said: "We are using this jubilee period between the rededication of the church on 18th April 1953 and the original dedication festival on 29th September to uncover as many memories and anecdotes as we can. If you have any stories or family memorabilia connected with the church from this critical time in its history we would love to hear from you."

She added: "There has been a church here for just over 1,000 years, dedicated to the memory of Alfege, the Archbishop of Canterbury who was martyred on this site in 1012. The present church was designed by Nicholas Hawksmoor, Sir Christopher Wren's famous pupil, and has connections with many famous figures from history."

Do you remember the church before the blitz in 1941?

Did you or one of your family members take refuge in the crypt as an air raid shelter? Were you married or christened in 'the church within a church' between 1946 and 1953 or were you one of the first when the restoration was complete?

Perhaps your grandfather was one of the master craftsmen and carpenters who worked on the restoration?

● If you have any information or other material send to Jenny Bracey by email at jenny.bracey@st-alfege.org.uk tel 020 8853 0687 or write to St Alfege Church, Greenwich Church Street, London SE10 9BJ.

Talk of the town

Fifteen-year-old Molly wins public speaking contest with speech entitled Royal World

FIFTEEN-year-old Molly Adeloye usually has the gift of the gab when it comes to expressing herself.

But she was speechless after winning the Greenwich regional final of the Jack Petchey's "Speak Out" Challenge!

Molly, a pupil at St Paul's Academy scooped top prize in the borough heat of the competition beating 18 other young speakers from schools in the royal borough.

Twelve schools took part in the young speakers competition, which involved 500 Year 10 students.

They all received a full day of training in public speaking and effective communication and the judges were most impressed with Molly's speech "Royal world."

"I am speechless. For me, it shows that anyone can make it. There were so many good speeches out there," said a triumphant Molly who won an iPod Touch for coming first and a chance to go through to the Grand Final of the Speak Out Challenge! on July 1.

Second place went to Joseph Powley, 14, from Thomas Tallis School with his speech "Fairy Tales" and third place went to Olivia Onwudinjo, 15, from St Thomas More RC School.

The judging panel at the event included borough commander Richard Wood, and representatives from the London Fire Brigade, Channel 4 and OFSTED as well as Yinka Oyetade, Greenwich Speak Out Champion 2011.

The contest is the biggest public speaking event of its kind in the world and is supported by the Speakers Trust, a leading public speaking training charity.

Now in its eighth year, over 18,000 year 10 students are expected to compete for over £15,000 worth of prizes in this year's final.

The Deputy Mayor of Greenwich, Cllr Angela Cornforth, who presented the awards said: "To build confidence in a young person is the key to everything. Self esteem is so important".

John wins £10k hospice lotto

A former MP for Erith and Thamesmead has scooped the top prize in the Greenwich & Bexley Community Hospice Lottery Rollover draw. John Austin, 68, won £10,000 in the Rollover draw, which was held on March 22. He was presented with the winning cheque at the hospice in , Abbey Wood and gave £1,000 prize back to the charity in recognition of its valuable work. The rest he says will be spent on his three children and nine grandchildren. John has supported the hospice since he met the co-founders Pat Jeavons and Don Sturrock over 25 years ago. His fundraising for the hospice over the years has included running the London marathon and abseiling down various local buildings.

Work of prolific local artist raises funds for worthy causes

by Dick Townsend-Smith

ELTHAM artist Doris Salter left a lasting legacy when she passed away, which has raised more than £600 for worthy causes.

A charity art sale celebrating her life's work raised the cash at Greenwich Community College's Haimo Centre in Eltham. Doris attended the centre for 40 years and successfully exhibited her work at the prestigious Royal Academy Summer Exhibition in Piccadilly several times.

The success of the event delighted her sons Anthony and Christopher. "The sale of artwork by our late mother exceeded our expectations. Many of her friends, former tutors and fellow students attended the day and many who visited the sale said they were impressed with the quantity and quality of work on display. It work showed the high standards that can be achieved by students at Haimo Road," said Anthony.

Christopher added: "We are very grateful to Greenwich Community College for hosting the art sale of mum's work during their open day and thank them for their generous support. We'd also like to thank friends who helped organise and make this a successful event."

The money will be donated to King's College Hospital renal unit and the Greenwich Community College Trust to help students.

The event also gave the public a chance to tour the centre and find out about the wide range of adult education courses run throughout the year.

College principal, Gary Chin said: "The event was a great success and we are delighted that Doris's work has raised a considerable amount of money for two worthwhile causes."

Top tips for cycle security

POLICE officers have issued the following tips to help cyclists protect their bikes, and increase the chances of having it returned if stolen. As soon as you buy a bike you should:

- Buy a lock and expect to pay at least £40 for a good one
- Lock tightly so that your cycle is hard to move around when parked
- Lock both wheels and the frame to a cycle stand or other immovable object
- Secure your lock so it does not touch the ground
- Register your bike details onto online property databases BikeRegister.com which can help the police return recovered bikes
- Park your bike where it can be seen and try to use designated parking areas
- Make sure the locks catch the bike frame as well as both wheels and the post, or a thief may steal the bike and leave the wheels behind. Also, make sure the post can't be cut through, or the bike lifted off it
- Don't leave your bike in the same place every day

- Make it hard for a thief to smash the lock open: fill the D part of a lock with as much bike as possible.
- Take any items that can be removed without tools - wheels, lights, seat post and saddle, panniers - with you.

Police donate bikes to charity

POLICE are donating bikes to a charity that supports the forces and their families. Officers have selected 20 cycles to be given to the National Armed Forces Charity, SSAFA, which provides practical support and assistance to servicemen and women, veterans, and their families.

The bikes, which were stolen and subsequently seized by police, have been selected as officers were unable to trace their original owners.

Sergeant Tom Lee in charge of the Greenwich Safer Transport team said: "We are really pleased to donate these bikes as they go to a charity that will put them to good use - we hope that this donation will help SSAFA to continue with their goal - to help forces and their families."

BAGGED: Friends volunteers count the number of sacks collected after their latest litter-pick in Maryon and Maryon Wilson Parks

Parks spring clean

A 20-strong group of park friends took advantage of the warmer weather to spruce up their favourite green space earlier this month.

Volunteers, including five children, collected 15 sacks of litter during the clean up on April 6. The members of the Friends of Maryon and Maryon Wilson Parks were out picking up litter as part of the Capital Clear-up Campaign. The campaign, led by environment charity Ground Work, has co-ordinated thousands of clean up events across London during the six years. Events are supported by the London Mayor's Capital Clean Up grant scheme which provides funding for major clean up projects or clean up kits with a range of equipment and advice a group needs to get cleaning.

The Friends had put in a bid to the campaign and received a clear-up kit to help them. The kit includes litter pickers, picking-bag hoops, safety gloves and hi-vis jackets as well as a first aid kit and Capital Clean-up information. It will come in handy for the group's monthly litter and rubbish picking in Maryon and Maryon Wilson Parks, Gilbert's Pit and Barrier Gardens in Charlton.

Friends chair Tim Anderson said: "The members of the Friends have developed the skill of spotting litter and rubbish in the parks and then removing it. Basically litter and dumped rubbish is an ugly eyesore. People who drop litter and throw rubbish are creating a nasty unpleasant mess in their own neighbourhood. Maybe they do not realise that their actions spoils our environment and offend members of the general public. We support the 'Love Where You Live Campaign' and are not surprised that more and more people hate litterbugs."

Careless care worker

Almost £10,000 in pension credits stolen from 96-year-old

A CARE worker swindled almost £10,000 from a bedridden patient by getting her pension paid into his account.

Lekan Badmus, 51 of Heldar Court, SE1, was given a three-month prison sentence suspended for 12 months when he appeared at Woolwich Crown Court last Tuesday, April 9. He was also ordered to undertake 150 hours of unpaid work in the community.

The court heard he had stolen £9,684.60 from a bedridden 96-year-old resident at a private care home. The theft dated from April 2009 when Mr Badmus, a care worker with the Royal Borough of Kingston, was involved in the fraudulent redirection of the elderly resident's DWP Pension credits into his own bank account for a period of 17 months.

The matter came to light when family members noticed that the monthly pension credit payments had ceased. They contacted Police who referred them to the DWP who refunded the £9684.60 in full as there had been an error in allowing the payments to be transferred without authorisation.

The royal borough's anti fraud team launched an investigation as the victim's care in a private home was supported by the borough. An audit trail of the defrauded money led directly to the bank account of Mr Badmus.

He was arrested in March last year where his property was searched. Various bank cards and passports in other identities were found.

Mr Badmus was taken to Plumstead Police station and interviewed by a royal borough investigator and the police. He admitted that he had received the payments and was subsequently charged with three Theft Act offences. He pleaded guilty to all offences and the court heard that Mr Badmus had been dismissed from his job with the Royal Borough of Kingston and was now unemployed.

In summing up, His Honour Judge Hilliard QC, Honorary Recorder for Greenwich, at Woolwich Crown Court, said it was a shocking offence and that Mr Badmus had helped himself to thousands of pounds with no care for the victim at all. The judge also praised royal borough staff for the commendable way in which they had dealt with the elderly resident and her financial affairs.

A job lot for Cleansweep

Jobhunters make fresh start as royal borough street sweepers

by Dick Townsend-Smith

A NEW group of washers and brushers are joining the borough's Cleansweep team to help keep streets around the borough clean and tidy.

The new workers have been taken on under the council's Greenwich Local Labour Programme (GLLP) which aims to get 250 people off benefits and into regular paid work.

The first 31 out of hundreds of new local recruits have now just started work – many of them after years without a job.

After a day's training at the council's Carnbrook Depot in Kidbrooke, the new members of the Cleansweep team are now kitted out in their uniforms and starting work.

They include Cherie, 28, from Plumstead, a lone parent who said: "The job means that I don't have to worry about the benefit cap and reforms and means I can continue to feed my children and keep a roof over our heads."

"This job will get me out there and will be a helpful stepping stone toward a further job."

Cherie went through a selection interview for the job. She said: "To be offered an interview was daunting, however, on the day the interviewers made me feel really relaxed."

Also just starting his new Monday to Friday street cleaning job is Ray from Eltham. He has been unemployed for four years, and with his partner is raising a young family. The family was about to lose £99 per week but now Ray, 40, has started his first full-time job.

He said: "I'm going to be based in Thamesmead, and I'm over the moon about it. I've spent four years looking for a job, and I'm just so happy that I've got one at last. I am overjoyed to be doing something that gets me away from staring at four walls. This job will mean having money in my pocket, being able to take my children out on trips, and a start of a new future."

Meanwhile, mum Bridget, 44, from Thamesmead has just started a caretaking job looking after and managing council buildings like blocks of flats. She said: "I haven't worked for a long time because I've been bringing up my children."

"I've been living on a low income until now anyway, which is very hard. But the benefits cap mean I would lose £5,000 a year. I haven't been able to get a job until now, because everyone wants you to have some experience, and I've only ever worked in shops full-time and done childcare before I had the children. Getting this job is brilliant, because I like getting out and meeting new people – and the best thing is I'm getting paid. I think you only get out of something what you put into it."

"I think you need to teach your children about the work ethic."

As the council launched a new scheme to help local people off benefits and into work, GT went to find out how the first new recruits were getting on...

Job's a good'n!

The royal borough is investing £6million into its new Greenwich Local Labour Programme (GLLP). It comes as councils across the country are faced with thousands of low or no income families facing a financial crisis and long-term unemployment.

The first 31 of the new recruits have now started work. The vacancies were created within the borough's parks and open spaces teams, and in street cleansing, recycling, enforcement and town centre management. They are a mix of full and part-time jobs at or higher than the London Living Wage rate.

The new recruits include those with families, and others who would have been plunged further into financial hardship by the new benefits cap and other reforms.

The cap would have seen the first 31 recruits lose more than £3,000 a week between them if they hadn't got the new jobs.

Work has also been going on behind the scenes to help families with childcare – still a major barrier to getting a job.

Clr Chris Roberts, leader of the royal borough, said: "We have a proud record helping local people gain the skills to get into work and a key part of this programme is to break down those major barriers to work, such as providing good quality childcare."

Helping families through the cuts

THE Greenwich Local Labour Programme (GLLP) new jobs scheme has been set up to help families facing benefit cuts. The cuts are:

- A reduction in weekly housing benefit to social housing tenants who have one or more spare bedrooms
 - A reduction in council tax benefit support – all non-pensioner claimants will see their council tax benefit reduced by 15 per cent
 - A total benefit cap – benefits for out-of-work non-pensioner claimants will be cut to £500 per week for couples and families and £360 per week for single childless people.
- The first two reforms came into force on April 1. The total benefit cap will be introduced from July 15.

- In the borough, 4,000 social housing tenants are getting a cut in housing benefit if their homes are 'under-occupied'.
- A total of 18,530 residents are now receiving less council tax benefit, and 14,700 claimants are now paying some council tax for the first time.
- The royal borough has set up a new welfare reform team to support households hit by the benefit cap and the housing benefit reduction. This team includes Greenwich Local Labour and Businesses (GLLaB), Job Centre Plus and council housing staff.
- Last year 4,500 people were helped in getting into work by the Greenwich Local Labour in Business (GLLaB) jobs and training service.

FIYE family men shared a new kind of optimism and camaraderie last week when they were welcomed back into the world of work in Greenwich.

They took to the streets as refuse workers on Tuesday (April 9) after an induction day at the Birchmere Depot in Thamesmead.

They were the first group of new recruits to benefit from a £6million two-year scheme to create employment opportunities for residents worst hit by the changes to the benefits system.

The new jobs are in parks and open spaces teams, street cleaning, recycling, enforcement and town centre management.

Part of the initiative is to get long term unemployed people "work ready", making sure they keep good time, follow instructions and report any absences or problems.

Richard, a 42-year-old father, had been unemployed for just under two years.

He told GT: "I was a decorator for 25 years but the work has gone out of it now. The money's gone down from £140 a day three years ago to £72 today. It makes a huge difference.

"When I was unemployed it got to the stage where I wanted to get back to work. I could feel myself getting lazy. I was bored at home, I wanted to do something, so I was grateful when this came up.

"I live locally so it takes me 10 minutes to walk, although I'm cycling to lose weight. My wife is pleased about it. She said I was getting lazy around the house. She said it would give me a bit of oomph.

"We have six months here and we'll see how it goes after that. I hope it leads to permanent employment. It would be nice, a bit of job security."

Eddie volunteers at the Edo Judo Kwai club in Eltham with Richard and went into security to make ends meet after working on the Underground back in 2000. The 39-year-old said: "That's been it for the last 10 years or so, then I fell into the unemployment trap in the last two years like lots of people do.

"You get a bit complacent, a bit nervous about getting into employment because you think you're going to be worse off.

"Taking that first step, that gamble, is the difficult bit when you've got a lot of kids, like I have, six and one on the way. You get into the habit of surviving the best you can.

"You get used to that pattern and it's a fear thing to get out of it because you know you could be even worse off. You've got responsibilities, your partner, your kids and bills to pay. It's a lot harder to take that leap.

"With GLLaB's help I've made that leap. It's a well-paid job as far as I'm concerned, the hours suit me down to the ground and they help you with tax calculations and all the rest of it.

"We've got people behind us if things do go wrong, a little bit of a safety net, and I think a lot of people want to take that chance if they get some support.

"I've always wanted to work, and have worked a lot of my life. Now I want to work and not just survive but enjoy it a little, with a holiday once a year.

"I've enjoyed today. They're a good group of people. I've cherished the time I've had with the kids, it's the only perk with unemployment, but you miss the camaraderie with workmates."

Welcome back

“There is a stigma than comes with being unemployed and your confidence gets knocked quite a bit. You do start to feel inadequate. I couldn’t tell you how many times I’ve sent my CV out. I’ve had one rejection in two years, and that was a no”

by Peter Cordwell

Robert, 45, who lives in Woolwich Dockyard, was previously a mechanic but had been out of work for nearly three years.

He said: "Our eldest child is eight, and my wife is going to university so we are getting a childminder to help while I go to work.

"I have been in the house all the time with my children but I am going for this job to get something better for my children. I feel I want to start a new life. I got very good advice from GLLaB and the council with the benefit cap coming. They are also helping me with my arrangements with my children."

Forty-five-year-old Mark, who lives in Thamesmead, worked in the building trade for 25 years as a plasterer and renderer, and also qualified as a locksmith.

He said: "I got made redundant two years ago and it's just been really hard since. I took the locksmith course about three months ago and still couldn't get a job. I went to a GLLaB seminar event and there wasn't an interview as such. If you turned up you got a chance. I'm glad to be back to work. It was driving me mad. I was on the computer three hours a day job searching.

"My partner is fully behind me and we're both hoping for full-time employment.

"I love keeping busy after being on building sites for 25 years. I'm a physical person who gets my hands dirty and gets stuck in, so I'll give it a go."

A NEW team of maintenance staff started work in the borough's parks and green spaces last week, writes Dick Townsend-Smith. They were given an all-day briefing for environmental workers at the council's Oxleas Woods parks and open spaces depot. One set of jobs involve gardening in the parks, dealing with ground maintenance, grass cutting and pruning rose bushes and shrubs.

The other work deals with park-keeping and includes keeping parks clean and tidy by picking up litter and removing graffiti. Melanie, 41, last worked in 1990 in catering at Gatwick Airport. She said: "Since then I've got stuck in the benefits rut. You feel alienated from the community because you are not working. It means you can't go on holiday abroad

This is a big step for me, and hopefully seeing their mum working again will give my boys stability." Godfrey has been offered a gardening job with parks and grounds maintenance. He lives in a privately-rented house in Woolwich. "We are a proud family and responsible people, and I started looking for a job in 2005," he said. "I didn't want to take benefits, but apart from volunteering I couldn't get any work. It's a big step to take this job, but I don't want to claim anything if I can work. I hope my life will change now. The people who are organising this project are excellent, and I'm so grateful they are helping me."

Mohamed has been offered a job as a gardener at Woolwich cemetery. "I'm very happy about it," he said.

Sudi from Woolwich has been offered a job in park keeping working on Plumstead Common. "It's the first paid job I've been offered since 2002," she said. "I'm really happy that I've found this work."

WAXING LYRICAL: McMoon was big hit with the kids

Youngsters are over the Mrs McMoon

MRS McMoon is definitely someone to catch next time around if the Bishop family's appraisal is anything to go by.

Chaperoned by "Nanny Blue Car" and nine-year-old Harrison, six-year-old Evie and Isaac, aged four, entered entirely into the spirit of Katie Grace Cooper's lovable Scottish character spinning magic "from the tick tock of clocks to the smell of freshly-baked cakes".

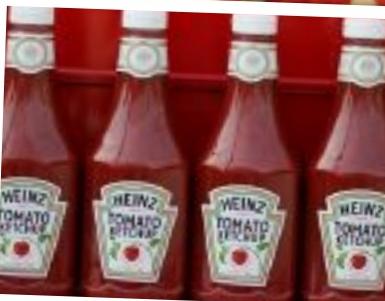

Going from an elderly lady to a six-year-old child, then a neighbour and finally a farmer, Mrs McMoon effortlessly got the children to join in her cosy adventures upstairs in the Story Zone at Greenwich Theatre.

"All the children felt part of the story and they were absorbed in it," said Mrs Bishop. "It was a great way to introduce children to an actor at work and getting them to join the story. Mrs McMoon was a natural at getting kids involved."

The children sat on a rug with the parents on chairs around them. Evie announced: "Oh, come on!" after one of Mrs McMoon's ad-libs - which included using a child's foot as a phone - and Isaac's response after another one was: "Seriously?"

Mrs Bishop added: "It was an excellent show and not too long. All the parents and children joined in the song Mrs McMoon made up and had four groups of us singing different parts. It was great."

Mrs McMoon asked the children what came before the flower and Isaac answered immediately: "Seed." A clever little lad. PC

THERE'S an exhibition that's out of this world at the Royal Observatory this summer.

More than 100 images of space make up Visions of the Universe, which is on at the Greenwich Park museum from June 7.

The display also looks at the development of telescropy, photography, and humans' understanding of our place in the cosmos.

There's a close-up view of the surface of Saturn, shots of clouds of colourful dust in which new stars are forming thousands of light years away, and the dizzying sight of Earth as seen from the International Space Station.

The exhibition is designed as a visual tour of the solar system, with glimpses of the moon, sun, the planets and deep space, before returning to Earth. The photographs on display include shots from NASA, the Russian space programme and the world's biggest telescopes.

photographer Michelle Dishart never goes anywhere without her camera.

On a trip to Germany in 2010 she began documenting the transient art on the Berlin Wall.

"I thought it was important to make a record of the graffiti, because it is constantly being covered over with new paintings," Michelle told Scene. "The ones that I photographed will now be gone."

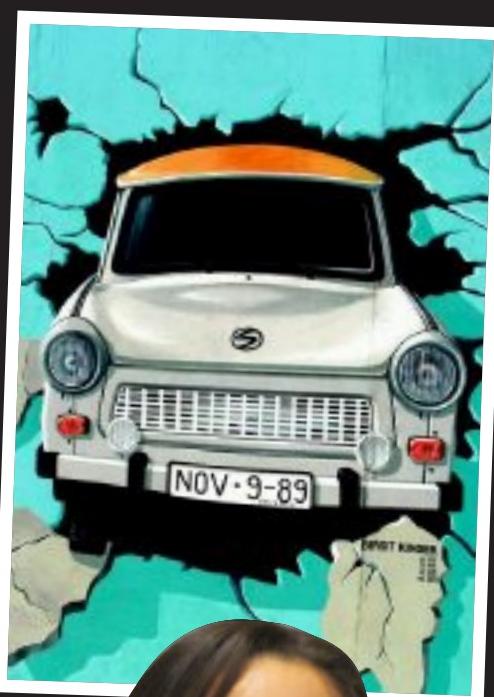

The wall shots are part of Michelle's exhibition which is on at Charlton House until the end of the month. There are also large-scale pictures from her trips to India and Barcelona. "I have been a photographer for 15 years," the 39-year-old said. "I've amassed a great range of pictures and I thought it was about time I shared them."

There are 17 of the A3-sized snaps on display, which are on sale for £35 each - including the frame.

I WISH I WAS IN DIXIE: front line of Phoenix Dixieland Jazz Band

Clive hopes weather hits right notes

THE organiser of a June jazz concert is hoping the event will be a midsummer's day dream, and not a watery nightmare.

Lifelong jazz fan Clive Corlett is at the helm for the gig in Greenwich Park on June 15, and told Scene: "I've organised the gig for six years and it's proved very popular – the only thing I have to do now is keep my fingers crossed for the weather!"

It's the return of the Phoenix Dixieland Jazz Band to the Observatory Gardens, playing standards from the early part of the 20th century.

Clive explained: "Dixieland jazz is the traditional stuff from the 1920s that gets everybody's feet tapping. It's not like modern jazz which has more of a cult following and doesn't appeal to everyone."

Louis Armstrong and Acker Bilk numbers will be on the bill, and there may be a tribute to a much loved jazz star who passed away earlier this year.

"Kenny Ball sadly died recently, and the band will probably do a couple of his tunes," Clive added. "We've found that the stuff the band plays appeals to all ages, from little ones who dance around, to the oldies, and everyone in between."

The sextet comprises trumpet, sax, trombone, drums, double bass and banjo. Clive considered toying with the lineup, but said: "Everyone loves it as it is, so why change a winning formula?"

June 15. Concert runs from 1pm to 3pm and tickets are £5 in advance and £6 on the gate. For more info and to book, call 020 8853 2150 or email cnbeavan@hotmail.com

BLACKHEATH HALLS

Rich Hall. Sat Apr 20
AMERICAN comedian Rich Hall hasn't graciously changed his name by deedpoll. He happens to be performing at a venue that shares his name this April. The 58-year-old started out by performing skits out of a suitcase as a street entertainer. In the Eighties he achieved success as a writer and performer for sketch show, Fridays, and also became a regular on Saturday Night Live. The North Carolina-born comic has had a long love affair with the UK, having lived here on and off for 23 years, appearing on comedy programmes and radio shows including Have I Got News For You, Never Mind The Buzzcocks and 8 out of 10 Cats. GreenwichHomes

Royal Borough of Greenwich's Choice Based Lettings Scheme

Edition 335

How the lettings policy works

Housing applicants are placed within 'Bands' according to the Royal Borough of Greenwich's policy for letting homes. Your band information is on the letter that the Council sent you when you registered, or when your circumstances changed. Property adverts say which band can apply and any other criteria. When all the bids are received, the property is then offered to: For properties advertised for band A and band B - the applicant who has had this priority status for the longest time. For properties advertised for band C applicants - the applicant who has been registered on the Council's list for the longest time.

BAND

- A is for applicants in unsatisfactory housing, including people moving due to demolition and those underoccupying their homes.
- B is for applicants the Royal Borough of Greenwich must prioritise according to the law, particularly homeless people, and others with an urgent need to move for medical or welfare reasons.
- C is for all applicants on the housing register, including those that are in priority bands A and B.

How do I apply?

Get on the list

First, you've got to be on the housing waiting list to join the scheme. If you're not, register an application online at www.royalgreenwich.gov.uk

Find your applicant number

It will be on the letter you've already had from the Royal Borough of Greenwich about the new scheme. You'll need that number and the reference number of the property you're after, which will be on the advert.

Pick out your ideal property

by looking in Greenwich Time or regularly checking the website:

www.royalgreenwich.gov.uk/homes

Click on your preference on the website. If you don't have a computer, you can always use one for free at either The Eltham or Woolwich Centre or a local library.

Apply in one of two ways

- Phone the 24-hour hotline 020 8921 4340. It's an automatic push-button system and calls will be charged at the normal local rate, or
- Via the Royal Borough of Greenwich's website
www.royalgreenwich.gov.uk/homes

Greenwich Homes

Royal Borough of Greenwich's Choice Based Lettings Scheme

Small is beautiful the Under Occupation scheme

If you are living in a Council property that is too big for you, we can help you to move to somewhere smaller.

The Council will pay your removal costs, and £350 for each bedroom gained.

To join the scheme you must be willing to move to a home with two bedrooms less than you have now:

- 3 bedroom to a 1 bedroom home
- 3 bedroom parlour/4 bedroom to a 1 or 2 bedroom home
- 5 bedroom to a 3 bedroom (or smaller) home

For more information contact the Project Team on

Mutual Exchange Swapping your home

Council and Housing Association Tenants can exchange their property with another tenant. From April 2006 applicants who have registered for a mutual exchange will be able to find suitable swaps through the Greenwich Homes website www.royalgreenwich.gov.uk/homes

GreenwichHomes

Royal Borough of Greenwich's Choice Based Lettings Scheme

Important Notice

Changes to the rents and tenancies of some advertised housing association properties.

Affordable Housing

Currently the rent level for the properties you see advertised in Greenwich Homes is significantly lower than full market rents in private sector housing.

From now you will now be seeing some housing association properties advertised for higher rents, up to eighty percent of the market rent. These rents will also include the service charge that you will need to pay for the property. We will use the phrase Affordable Housing on the adverts to help you identify these properties.

Please note the Council will continue to advertise all the homes it owns at the standard rent level.

You can bid for properties advertised as Affordable Housing in exactly the same way as for other advertised properties. If you are successful the housing association may want to check you have enough income to pay the higher rent, whether you are working or on benefits. If you are currently a housing association tenant the rent you pay on your present home will not be affected by this change.

Fixed term tenancies

You will also notice that the tenancies for Affordable Housing and some other housing association properties may now be for a shorter period than the present lifetime tenancies offered by housing associations. The phrase Fixed term tenancy will be used in the adverts to identify these properties. The tenancy details will be explained to you if you are successful when you view the property.

Please think about these changes when bidding for an Affordable housing property and make sure you can afford the home that you choose.

This is what happened to the homes advertised in issue 332

In a league so special

by Peter Cordwell

"YES, I've made friends – everyone!" exclaimed 10-year-old Tyrese Friday at the special sports camp for disabled children at the Waterfront Leisure Centre last week.

Tyrese, who lives in Blackheath and goes to Thorntree primary school in Charlton, was enjoying his second camp that's run by the award-winning South London Special League.

"I'm enjoying the wheelchair basketball most and yesterday we also played table-top cricket," said Tyrese, whose favourite football team is Arsenal. "I'd like to compete in the wheelchair football at the Paralympics. My favourite lessons at school are numeracy, literacy and PE."

Boccia, seated volleyball and new age curling were other sports on offer at the camp held from 10am to 2pm from Monday to Thursday.

Twelve-year-old Kyle Alexander attended every day and said: "It's been really fun. I've enjoyed all the different sports and want to be a Paralympian one day, probably in the wheelchair football."

"If I wasn't here I'd probably be at home on Playstation, on one of the football games because I'm a sports geek. My favourite team is Chelsea and I think that Eden Hazard is the fourth best player in the world! He is very creative and he doesn't hog the ball."

Project leader Sharon Brokenshire told GT: "Our job is to break down barriers to participation and the looks on the children's faces is all the reward we need over the four days. We are very grateful for the funding we received from the Charlton Athletic Community Trust and Greenwich NHS, their last bit of funding before they were disbanded."

Greenwich Mayor David Grant joined in the fun on Thursday and told GT: "The South London Special League is doing a great job in the borough and this was another wonderful example of their work."

to use Sutcliffe Park and Crystal Palace for free," their mother, Angela, told GT. "Over a year this is a significant saving considering how much they train. They both also receive a lump sum which helps towards equipment costs. A race swimming suit has a surprisingly short life and for running you don't just have one pair of shoes - there are track spikes, middle distance spikes, cross-country spikes and training shoes.

"If you want to avoid injury you have to wear the correct kit at the correct time. Then there is sports massage, which is vital to avoid injury."

In the last four months the girls have competed in Sheffield, Somerset, Sunderland, Birmingham, Leeds, Derbyshire and Liverpool.

"I want to see how far my swimming will take me," said Natasha, who, like Sabrina, competes for Cambridge Harriers. "I swim regularly for regional teams and I'm on the ASA England Talent programme. I might look at triathlon or a career on the track even though my fitness is mainly from swimming. My ambition is to represent Team GB one day."

Sabrina has already competed for England in cross-country and sees her career over middle distances on the track. She already competes out of her age group and is a great prospect.

CHARLTON MANOR had the honour of representing Greenwich in THREE different sports at the London Youth Games sportshall events. The tag-rugby team battled out of the group stages to set up a thrilling 4-3 victory over Olga primary school from Tower Hamlets, but lost to finalists Honeywell Junior from Wandsworth.

The quick sticks' hockey team scored plenty of goals but in a tough draw were edged out by some strong teams. The girls football team found the going tough but only conceded a small number of goals to go out of the competition at the group stage.

"It was a brilliant experience and an honour to feature for Greenwich in three different competitions," said PE teacher Ed Price.

Sister bliss!

Girls take biathlon titles

SISTERS Natasha and Sabrina Sinha beat a field of 700 to complete a fantastic family double at the National Schools Biathlon Championships at Crystal Palace.

Sixteen-year-old Natasha - an Olympic torchbearer at London 2012 - won the Year 10-11 event for the third year running while Sabrina won the Year 9 age group with the fastest run of the day.

The sisters, who live in Blackheath, received their trophies from Modern Pentathlon silver medallist Heather Fell after their 100m swim and 1000m run.

Both girls won their events comfortably and Sabrina was winning hers for the second year running. Natasha - ranked in the top 10 in the country at butterfly - is known as the swimmer that runs and Sabrina, in the top five cross-country runners in her age group, as the runner that swims.

Both girls are being supported by Greenwich Starting Blocks, the charity set up by Royal Greenwich to help elite athletes reach their goals.
